Description: Enter your science video, website, or multimedia for a chance to win this year's multimedia awards! It's time for you to send us your best videos, interactive multimedia, websites, blogs, or any other techie creation meant for sharing the latest in life science research with the world. You only have until May 6th (2011) to enter, so post your submission today! We're calling all scientists, research groups, teachers, and bio-enthusiasts who've gone the extra mile to communicate their work in style. The entries will be rated by a panel of judges and the winners will be announced in our September issue. We'll also ask you, our readers, to pick your favorites. All entries must be created with funding from an individual or single research grant (no entries created with funding from a corporation or research institution will be accepted). All videos must be 10 minutes or less, and all entries must relate to the life sciences. Entries will be judged on scientific content, concept/originality, entertainment value, and production quality. Winners will be featured in a full-length article in the September issue of The Scientist, complete with a presentation of their multimedia mastery on our website.
