Description: Publisher that specializes in academic and professional book and journal publishing, mostly in the field of biodiversity science and natural history. They are academic publishers based in Eastern Europe with more than 600 books and e-books published so far. They largely perform their activities in English, with only a minor fraction of publications being in French, German, Russian and Bulgarian. Pensoft is also involved as a publisher in several European Union Fp5, FP6 and FP7 projects where they have specialized in dissemination, communication and publishing; as well as in creating and maintaining websites and Internal Communication Platforms (ICP), designing of logos, flyers, leaflets and posters. Open-access journals include ZooKeys, BioRisk, and PhytoKeys. ZooKeys is a journal in biodiversity science and has implemented several innovations in digital publishing and dissemination including developing and implementing an XML-based submission, editorial, publication and dissemination workflow. The TRIADA platform, for publishing, disseminating and marketing of printed books, e-books and open access journals, provides a linked environment for content, authors, reviewers, editors and customers through four independent classifications (taxonomic, subject, geographical, and geological time scale) as well through tagging and semantic mark-up. TRIADA uses a one-time registration process which allows users to submit, review or edit manuscripts, to subscribe for E-mail and RSS alerts, and to purchase Pensoft's products. Web services: Metadata and journal content can be harvested.
