Description: We're bringing Web-based research into the Internet Era by empowering people to mark up web pages in the browser and manage and collaborate on them online. And that's just the start... We've got much more planned in a variety of areas to help people manage the mounds of info they're pulling off the Web everyday. Simply drag the scribe bookmarklet to your browser's Bookmarks toolbar. Click it later to mark up, save or share web pages. Even though the world uses the Internet to research nearly everything for work, school and home (job postings, press releases, Wikipedia articles, medical info, etc.), most folks still use old-school ways of annotating, organizing and sharing online info (printing to mark by hand, copying/pasting into Word, etc.). It's archaic, laborious and a waste of time. We're changing that. A bookmarklet is a bookmarked link that, when clicked, adds functionality to your browser. When the scribe Bookmarklet is clicked, it loads the scribe Toolbar atop the current webpage you're viewing. Adding the scribe Bookmarklet to your browser is a breeze. Simply drag it to your browser's Bookmarks Toolbar.
