Proper Citation: BioLexicon (RRID:SCR_000589)

Description: A large-scale English terminological database that contains over 2.2.M lexical entries (3.3M semantic relations), terminological variants and rich linguistic information (subcategorization frames) which supports text mining systems. It is primarily intended to support text mining and information retrieval in the biomedical domain. The BioLexicon provides specific information to help determine the relevant facts to be extracted. BioLexicon is available in a relational database format (MySQL dump format) and it adheres to the EAGLES/ISO standards for lexical resources.
